The Descendants of William Champion

Basic notes:

He worked as a Merchant in Bristol, Gloucestershire. He worked as a Banker in Bristol, Gloucestershire. Miscellaneous: Family puzzles. There is no concrete evidence to suggest a connection between Samuel Lloyd and the same family of Dolobran & Birmingham. And yet, since he is evidently one of the Lloyd family of Bristol, it is not impossible to speculate that it could be so. It is possible that he may be a son or nephew of Edward Lloyd of Bristol, whose wife was a Champion and thus part of the Champion/Lloyd/Harford/Scandrett family Quaker grouping.

I shall re-iterate that which I have recorded elsewhere in my files, of the provenance of the Lloyd family of Bristol. ----- There is no certainty that Edward Lloyd (son of Samuel Lloyd) of Bristol is of the Dolobran line of the family but there is equally no evidence to the contrary. What is suggestive, from the account as given of the life of Richard Davies, <http://archive.org/stream/accountofconvinc00daviiala#page/102/mode/2up> as referred to by Dr. Arthur Raistrick, in his "Quakers in Science and Industry" is that they were quite probably cousins. To what degree, is unknown. It is not impossible to suppose, that they may have been 1st cousins or cousins of the second degree. Two families of Lloyds, both Quakers, at a time when to be so was indicative of being so by Convincement; living in separate areas of the country and yet known to each other and suffering imprisonment in the same location at the same time and finally, enough of a curiosity, that some commentary seems need be given by way of a vague explanation in the aforementioned records. Dr. Raistrick was probably correct in what he supposed and for such reason, I take it a stage further and place it not as a certain connection but as a more than possible connection. By doing so, it begins to lend some explanation, as to why this Samuel's son Edward Lloyd of Bristol, should find himself connected and associated with those Bristol families whose own connections to the Lloyds of Dolobran/Birmingham form an integral part of the wider scope of Quaker interest in the metal trades and other associative businesses.

If the kinship between the families is so, then Edward Lloyd's date of death gives some loose indication as to his own possible date of birth and likewise for his father Samuel. I stress the word loose. Furthermore, as Dr. Raistrick comments, how curious it should seem, that there is yet another connection between the families in the sense that John Thomas, who was released from his employment by the Quaker, Thomas Oliver... who went to Pennsylvania..... then took up work as a shepherd for Charles Lloyd at Dolobran and where he also assisted in the forge there. In 1704, Charles Lloyd sent John Thomas to Bristol, to work for Edward Lloyd, (or more pertinently, the Bristol Brass Wire Company in which Edward had an interest) where he exercised his valuable skills to later assist Abraham Darby in the improved method of casting metal that he developed. Now why would Charles do that? To help out a member of his own family?

In the collections of the National Library of Wales, (on=line), further evidence is given at <http://welshjournals.llgc.org.uk/browse/viewpage/llgc-id:1238716/llgc-id:1243196/llgc-id:1243279/getText>

They had one son: William Edward.

Basic notes:

He worked as a Philanthropist. He worked as a Quaker Minister in 1805. FORSTER, WILLIAM (1784-1854), minister of the Society of Friends, was born at Tottenham, near London, 23 March 1784. His father, who was a land agent and surveyor, and his mother were pious members of the Society of Friends, and they took much pains in bringing up their children. From his earliest years William, their second son, manifested a profoundly spiritual disposition, and in after years would say that 'in looking back on his earliest religious experience he could not remember a time when he was not sensible of the work of the Holy Spirit in his heart.' After his education was completed he declined to follow his father's profession, and, having taken part in Quaker meetings for two years, was recognised as a minister in 1805, in his twenty-second year. For several years he was an itinerant minister, and visited many parts of England and Scotland. For a time he settled at Tottenham. In October 1816 he married, at Shaftesbury, Anna Buxton, a daughter of Mr. Buxton of Earham, Norfolk, and sister of Elizabeth Fry [q. v.] and Joseph John Gurney [q. v.] Anna Buxton, whose family were residing at Weymouth, was a handsome girl of fascinating manners. She had attracted the interest of George III, to whom Weymouth was a favourite resort, and was on intimate terms with the royal family. Shortly before her marriage she had come under deep religious impressions. Forster had been a helper of Mrs. Fry in her philanthropical efforts. After his marriage Forster resided at Bradpole, Dorset, where their only son, William Edward Forster [q. v.], was born in 1818. He afterwards removed to Norwich. In 1820 Forster was induced to undertake a mission to the United States on behalf of the society there. This visit was unexpectedly protracted to five years. A tendency had appeared towards Unitarianism, which ultimately caused a great separation in the body, much to Forster's distress. Though unable to avert the separation, his friends believed that he did good service in preventing the spread of Unitarian views. His eminently calm and peaceful tone suited him for conciliatory work. In the course of his life he paid two other visits to America. One was occasioned by a threatened secession among the Friends in the state of Indiana, arising from a difference of view on the slavery question. The efforts of the deputation of which

Forster was a member (in 1845) were highly successful, and furnished an illustration of the right method of dealing with brethren in reference to such differences. On another occasion Forster undertook a mission to Normandy for the purpose of fostering religious earnestness. A longer series of visits to the continent was paid in 1849-52, at the instance of the society, whose deputies sought interviews with all persons of influence to whom they could find access, for the purpose of promoting the anti-slavery movement. Still another continental visit was paid by him to the Vaudois churches in Piedmont. The reception he met with from the Vaudois pastors was most satisfactory. Dr. Lantaret, as moderator of the 'Table,' assured them that the sight of such an aged, venerable ambassador of Christ among them brought to their minds the passage 'How beautiful upon the mountains.' Before the last two of these continental missions Forster had performed an important service in Ireland. With the Society of Friends generally he was deeply concerned for the famine caused by the failure of the potato crop in 1846. Before any general committee of relief was formed he conferred with his friends on the subject, and at their request he set out on a journey to the distressed districts. In this journey he was accompanied by his son. He spent the time from 30 Nov. 1846 to 14 April 1847 investigating the condition of the people. These public labours were added to those of the ministry which he continued to carry on. His health failed in his later years. Nevertheless he was induced, at the request of his brethren and at the impulse of his own heart, to engage in an additional enterprise. This was to present an anti-slavery address to the president of the United States, and to the governors of the states and other persons of influence to whom they might find access. He left home in considerable bodily weakness in 1853. On 1 Oct. he and his fellow-deputies had an interview with President Pierce. He gave them little encouragement to believe that slavery would soon come to an end. The prosecution of their mission among other men of mark occupied the rest of the year. In January 1854 he was seized with severe illness while staying with Samuel Low near the Holston River, East Tennessee, North America, and after a few weeks of suffering he died on the morning of the 27th, aged 70. He was buried in the Friends' burying-ground at Friendsville. One is reminded of Howard dying at his post in the Far East, as Forster now did in the west. His son said with much truth: 'It is impossible not to feel that he was allowed to fall a martyr to his devotion to that great and holy cause of the abolition of negro slavery, in the earnest and untiring advocacy of which so large a portion of his life had from time to time been spent.' All through his life Forster bore a most consistent and devoted testimony to his creed. His ministry was emphatically evangelical. The news of his death caused an extraordinary sensation both in America and Great Britain. Warm testimonies to his worth appeared in the newspapers, and tokens of love and esteem were issued both by his own monthly and quarterly meetings and by the monthly meeting of the Friends in Tennessee. He published 'A Christian Exhortation to Sailors,' 1813, often reprinted, and translated into French; 'Recent Intelligence from Van Diemen's Land,' 1831; 'A Salutation of Christian Love,' issued by Forster's brother Josiah in 1860. Joseph Crosfield, James H. Tuke, and William Dillwyn published accounts of Forster's visit to Ireland in 1846. [Memoirs of the Life of William Forster, ed. Benjamin Seebohm, 2 vols. 1865; Brief Memoir by Robert Charleton, 1867; Smith's Friends' Books.]

Henry Richard Hanbury Gurney Wainford was born in 1829 in Norwich, Norfolk, died on 4 Feb 1901, and was buried on 8 Feb 1901 in Tudhoe, County Durham.

Basic notes:

He was educated at Earby Hall School in Newsham, Yorkshire. Despite Richard Hanbury Gurney's philanderings, the fact remains he had four children by Susan Wainford. His relations were mortified but somewhere there must have been some string pulling amidst the shocked diary entries, for Henry Richard Hanbury Gurney was apprenticed to the Shildon engineering works.... which was part of the Pease family empire and the Stockton and Darlington Railway..... and Joseph Pease, (son of Edward, the Father of Railways), had married Emma Gurney on the 20th March 1826. It would have been a kindness for Joseph to have helped the young man, whose father RHG, was Emma's 1st cousin. He worked as an apprentice to the Shildon iron works. He worked as an Engineer.

Eleanor Wainford

William Wainford was born in 1831.

Basic notes:

He was educated at Earby Hall in Newsham, Yorkshire. William Wainford was recorded in the census of the 6th June 1841 as being 10 years old. Thus, he was born in late 1830 or early 1831. His mother, Susan Wainford, already had three children by Richard Hanbury Gurney outside of wedlock and William was almost certainly the fourth. Despite Verily Anderson, in "Friends and Relations" p. 162, stating that "The Dick Gurneys were an extremely affectionate and faithful couple and though Dick strayed before marriage, he apparently never did after it." Apparently not so.... his marriage to Mary Jary was in May 1830. It is quite certain that just as William's brother, Henry Richard Hanbury Gurney was sent away to Earby Hall school, so was William, and RHG surely paid the fees for his children's education, and not for those who were not.

Richard next married Mary Jary,<sup>8,67,73</sup> daughter of William Jary and Unknown, on 17 May 1830. Mary died on 2 Dec 1857. They had one daughter: Mary.

Mary Jary<sup>45,67,73</sup> was born in Dec 1829 in London and died on 19 Oct 1872 in Eastbourne, East Sussex.

Basic notes:

Miscellaneous: Mary Jary's disgrace. The suit, Gurney v. Gurney and Taylor, came before the Divorce Court, Westminster. The husband sought dissolution of marriage, on the ground of misconduct by the wife. A petition had been presented for the settlement of property then vested in the wife in favour of the children, the issue of the marriage, and the Solicitor-General applied for a rule nisi calling on the respondent, Mrs. Gurney, to show cause why a plea or a pleading in the nature of or intended to be a plea should not be taken off the file, and why the petition for settlement should not be treated as unanswered or unopposed. Sir p. 102C. Cresswell granted a rule nisi. Evidence was given in the case on January 22nd, 1861, and the decree was made absolute on May 22nd.

Mary married John Henry Gurney,<sup>34,45,48,66,67,73</sup> son of Joseph John Gurney and Jane Birkbeck, on 15 Jun 1846 in London. John was born on 4 Jul 1819 in Earlham Hall, Earlham, Norfolk, died on 20 Apr 1890 in Northrepps Hall, Cromer, Norfolk, and was buried in Northrepps, Cromer, Norfolk. They had two children: John Henry and Richard Hanbury Joseph.

Basic notes:

He was educated at Leytonstone. He was educated at Grove House School in Tottenham, London. He worked as a Member of Parliament for Kings Lynn 1854 to 1865. He lived at 24 Kensington Palace Gardens, London. This was his London home when he represented Kings Lynn in Parliament. In 1874 it was acquired by Joseph Whitwell Pease, when he moved from 18 Prince's Gardens. He worked as a Banker in Norwich, Norfolk. He worked as a Founder member of the British Ornithologists' Union in 1858. He lived at Northrepps Hall, Cromer, Norfolk. Miscellaneous: John Henry Gurney, 30 Nov 1861. "The portrait of Mr. J. H. Gurney, M.P., President of the Norfolk and Norwich Museum, has this week been placed on the walls of that institution. It was painted by F. Grant, R.A., at the cost of 200 guineas." Miscellaneous: John Henry Gurney, 20 Apr 1890. Died, at Northrepps Hall, Mr. John Henry Gurney, in his 71st year. The only son of Joseph John Gurney, of Earlham Hall, so prominently associated with Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton in his efforts to abolish slavery in the West Indies, Mr. Gurney married Mary Jary, daughter of Richard Hanbury Gurney, of Thickthorn. Of the marriage there were two sons, Mr. J. H. Gurney and Mr. Richard J. H. Gurney. In 1854 he entered Parliament as member for King's Lynn, and sat for that borough until his resignation in 1865. As a naturalist Mr. Gurney was a recognised authority both in Europe and America, more especially on raptorial birds, and the magnificent collection in the Norfolk and Norwich (now the Castle) Museum owes its existence almost entirely to his energy and liberality. He was for many years a member of the East Anglian banking firm of Gurneys and Birkbecks, a justice of the peace for Norfolk, senior member of the Norwich Bench, and a magistrate for Lynn.
