He worked as a Slave trader and West Indian merchant. He was opposed to the abolition of slavery. "The people in England want to lower the prices of sugar and yet continue presenting petitions from all quarters to Parliament to procure the abolition of the slave trade. Many have left off the use of sugar, for the purpose of putting a stop to the slave trade. If the custom become prevalent of eating and using nothing that has been touched by slaves, we may soon expect to see people in the state of their first nature, naked in the field, feeding like Nebuchadnezzar upon grass. What wonders their philanthropy or Enthusiasm will produce is unknown." He worked as a Member of Parliament for Lancaster 1780 to 1790. He lived at Ellel Hall in Lancaster, Lancashire.
