Head, Fox & Co., Newport Rolling Mills in Middlesbrough, Yorkshire. At some later stage, the partnership was enlarged to include (I think) Henry Head (Jerry H's brother) and Thomas Wrightson. This partnership was, I feel sure, the forerunner in name of that which eventually became Head Wrightson & Co., Ltd. In all this, Joseph Whitwell Pease appears to have acted in the role of chief negotiator in drawing up the deed of partnership, and also over the matter of finding a site for the rolling mills, strongly urging the partners to set up their works at Newport, Middlesbrough, and which they did.

Fox Head & Co., hit a bad patch (as did most) during the depression of the late 1870's and 80's and it was somewhere about that time, that Theodore Fox by then at

Basic notes:

She was educated at Friend's School, West Town, Pennsylvania. She worked as a Quaker Minister after 20 Jul 1841. On the 20th July 1841, Edward Pease attends a meeting at Stockton (on Tees), where they cordially agree to recording E. P. Kirkbride (afterwards Mrs. Joseph John Gurney) a minister. The Diaries of Edward Pease Miscellaneous: 1848. She decided (the year after her husband's death), to leave Earlham and take up residence at The Grove (Lakenham Grove), feeling on one hand the keen loss of so many that seemed important, to Joseph Gurney's old home, which still retained so many happy associations.

In 1850 her family in America were eager for her to return home and only after the deaths that year of Catherine Gurney (her late husband's eldest sister) and Hannah Chapman Backhouse, did she feel that the time was suitable to do so. She left from Liverpool, after a farewell oration from William Forster (1784-1854). She returned for a short while in 1855, staying at William Forster's home, though he had died the previous year.

She was still in England in October of 1857, because Sir Joseph Whitwell Pease was staying with his cousin Theodore Fox at Neath, whilst she was there. He says :- [16th Oct 1857]. left Newport at 5.12, arrived at Neath at 8.27, too dark to see much; Cardiff seemed a large growing place, we passed the scene of last week's shocking accident. Theodore Fox (1831-1899) met us at Neath and kindly conducted us to Drymma House where we met a kind welcome. Poor E. P. Gurney seemed quite poorly, pain in her side.

22 Oct 1857 Thurs: Up abt 7.30 packed and got traps together, left Drymma about 11 o'clock, took leave of Cousin Eliza Gurney who has been ill all the time we have been there of erysipelas or shingles and has suffered a good deal.

She was living in Atlantic City, New Jersey, when she was visited a few weeks before she died, by the newly wed Richard Hanbury Joseph Gurney and his wife Sarah Evelyn Buxton. After their visit, Eliza began to fail fast and then died. The newly married couple were still in America and thus, were able to attend the funeral.

Eliza married Joseph John Gurney,^{1,5,6,8,15,19,20,21,22,23,24,25,26,27,28,29,30,31,32,33,34,35,36,37,38} son of John Gurney and Catherine Bell, on 21 Oct 1841 in FMH Darlington, County Durham. Joseph was born on 2 Aug 1788 in Earlham Hall, Earlham, Norfolk, died on 4 Jan 1847 in Earlham Hall, Earlham, Norfolk, and was buried on 11 Jan 1847 in FBG Gildencroft, Norwich. (12th is given by the AM).

Dr. Thomas Story Kirkbride^{1,39} was born on 31 Jul 1809 in Morrisville, Bucks County, Pennsylvania and died on 10 Dec 1883 in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, USA.

Basic notes:

He worked as a Physician. Thomas Story Kirkbride, MD., LLd., eldest son of John and Elizabeth (Story) Kirkbride, was born near Morrisville, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, at the paternal home on the banks of the Delaware, July 31, 1809. After attending schools in the neighborhood of his home, he spent four years at a noted classical school in Trenton, New Jersey, and afterwards devoted one year to the special study of higher mathematics at Burlington, New Jersey. The following year he spent on his father's farm in practical pursuits, which in later years he felt to have been of permanent advantage to his health. At the close of the year he read medicine with Dr. Nicholas Belleville, a distinguished physician and surgeon at Trenton, New Jersey, who had come from France with the forces under Marquis de Lafayette, during the American Revolution. Dr. Kirkbride graduated from the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania in 1832, and was immediately appointed Resident Physician at the Friends Asylum for the Insane, at Frankford, Philadelphia, remaining there one year. Dr. Kirkbride was noted from the first for his active interest in everything relating to the care of the patients and the management of the institution. On leaving the Friends' Asylum he received a flattering testimonial from the Board of Managers, and also from individual members of the Board a confidential request to return and take charge of the Asylum. In 1833 he was elected Resident Physician at the Pennsylvania Hospital, where he remained two years. During his second year, his colleague was Dr. William W. Gerhard, and both were diligent in the careful examination and noting of all cases under treatment; their observations, published separately, were among the early Hospital clinical reports issued in this country. In 1835 Dr. Kirkbride began general practice in Philadelphia and looked forward to devoting himself to surgery. He was a constant visitor at the Pennsylvania Hospital, keeping up his intimacy with the Medical Staff there engaged. The resignation of his friend, Dr. John Rhea Barton, led him to anticipate an appointment as his successor as Surgeon to the Hospital in the autumn of 1840. One summer morning, when walking in Race street, he met his friend, John Paul, an active member of the Board of Managers, who, to his entire surprise, asked him what would induce him to relinquish his long cherished plans and accept instead the office of Physician-in-Chief and Superintendent of the new Department for the Insane. It was a matter for serious consideration; his professional friends regarded the change as ill-advised, indeed as almost without justification. On the other hand, in the opportunity of starting a new institution, of developing new forms of management, and, in fact, of giving a new character to the care for the insane. Dr. Kirkbride finally saw inducements to forego his prospects of distinction as a surgeon. Without any solicitation, or even application, on his part, he was elected on October 12, 1840, to the post which he occupied until his death. After visiting institutions for the insane to the north and east of Philadelphia, he moved the following December, with his family, to the old mansion house within the Hospital grounds. From this time Dr. Kirkbride's ability and varied gifts were consecrated to the insane. His energy and enthusiasm never flagged and his duties kept him always at his post. His forty-two Annual Reports give the record of his life. They are at once the history of the institution over which he presided and the story of his untiring service. So completely indeed is his career identified with the medical care and cure of the insane in hospital, that some knowledge of this subject is necessary for any true conception of his character and work. He represented a great idea which he found worthy of life-long devotion. Eyes trained by knowledge to see his own ideal and to descry the hospital of the future as it stood before his vision, can alone perceive the value or the meaning of his labors. His earliest reports are peculiarly interesting as character studies. Written shortly after he entered the specialty, they reveal marvellous maturity of thought and firm grasp of the latest principals in the care of the insane, while the entire series of Reports form a valuable treatise on insanity and the relations of the community to the insane. Dr. Kirkbride was a pioneer in the movement for new and humane methods of treating the insane. In his early reports he insists that insanity should be considered a disease like other serious diseases, with equal hope of recovery. To emphasize this idea he urged the use of the name Hospital instead of Asylum. Bleeding and other debilitating treatment was given up entirely, restraint was seldom resorted to, comfortable and attractive rooms and wards took the place of the cells of an earlier day; the care-takers of the insane, instead of being "keepers" were attendants and nurses, and unvarying kindness and sympathy were made the rule of the Hospital. The beautiful grounds of the Hospital, in whose improvement Dr. Kirkbride took so keen an interest, were also felt to have their place in the moral treatment of the insane, together with the occupations and amusements which were provided for all those able to take part in them. The regular evening amusements, such as gymnastic drills, lectures, readings, magic-lantern exhibitions, (introduced as early as 1844) Dr. Kirkbride himself never failed to attend. Within the wards of the Hospital he found delight in the exercise of that benign power over the insane in which he was unrivalled. To know him thoroughly one needed to see him surrounded by those to whom his life was devoted. Dignity, tempered by gentleness, invariable courtesy, tenderest sympathy and tact, marked all his intercourse with his patients. His "tranquil grace of tone and look" and manner, his wonderful patience and his genial disposition brought healing influences, which were strengthened by the resolute firmness, the unyielding perseverance and the fortitude of his character. The sane and the insane recognized within him a rare spiritual force. In 1854 the wards were so overcrowded that further admissions were necessarily refused. He then suggested the erection of a separate building for men only, and published an "Appeal for the Insane," besides writing many articles for newspapers on the subject. He imparted his own enthusiasm to others, and many citizens, including the whole Board of Managers, threw themselves most heartily into the work. For thirty years, although not always prominently before the public, his counsel was constantly sought by the medical societies and successive Legislatures of Pennsylvania, in every movement relating to the care of the insane. His yearly Reports and his work on the Construction of Hospitals for the Insane, are his principal writings, but he contributed essays, reviews and notices to the medical journals and wrote frequently for newspapers, especially the old United States Gazette, and North American. Memoirs of his valued friends, Dr. William Pepper Sr., Professor of Theory and Practice in the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Isaac Ray, the author of the "Medical Jurisprudence of Insanity" were written by request of the College of Physicians. Dr. Kirkbride was one of the "original thirteen" physicians who, in 1844, founded the Association of Medical Superintendents, now the American Medico-Psychological Association. He was its first secretary, serving seven years; its vice-president for seven years, and its president from 1862 to 1870; he took the greatest interest in its proceedings, and was rarely absent from its meetings. He was a Fellow of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia; a member of the Philadelphia County Medical Society; Franklin Institute; Historical Society of Pennsylvania; American Philosophical Society ; and an honorary member of the British Medico- Psychological Association, etc. He was for ten years a trustee of the State Lunatic Asylum at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and for more than forty years a manager of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind. In 1880 Lafayette College, Pennsylvania, conferred upon him the degree of LL.D. In 1880, after recovering from a severe illness of several months, he returned, with renewed ardor, to his accustomed work. In March, 1883, he was prostrated by typhoid-pneumonia ; his illness lasted nine months, and he died peacefully, December 16, 1883, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. The late Professor S. D. Gross, in his Autobiography, thus described Dr. Kirkbride's appearance; "In personal appearance Dr. Kirkbride was eminently attractive. He was of medium height, with a fine physique, a well-shaped head, and a countenance highly expressive of benevolence and warmth of heart. His voice was sweet and gentle, and his presence and demeanor were such as to win at once the affection and confidence of his most wayward patients." One of his oldest assistants, Dr. John Curwen, wrote of him as follows: "Laboring with a single aim for the relief and welfare of those to whose care he had devoted more than forty years of his life, he has left behind him in what he has written and in what he has done, a monument which will stand so long as the care of the insane will require the aid of those institutions with which his name and his fame have been so closely connected." By resolution of the Board of Managers, an extended Memorial of Dr. Kirkbride's life was published with the annual report of the Hospital, to the contributors for the year 1883. At a special meeting of the board of managers of the Hospital, held December 17, 1883, a minute was adopted and resolutions expressive of their sense of the great loss they had sustained and of their estimation of the value of his services ; they also directed that a tablet be placed in the Centre Hall of the Department for Women, bearing the following inscription :

Basic notes:

He was educated at Nautical College Pangbourne in Pangbourne, Berkshire. He worked as an officer of the Royal Army Service Corps. He worked as an officer in charge Lake Havel seaplane base from 1948 to 1949 in Berlin, Germany. He worked as an Author and Traveller. "My Struggle with Joseph Stalin"; 'My Struggle With Joseph Stalin' is a first-hand account of the Berlin Airlift written by someone whose period of national service coincided with this extraordinary historical event.

"Creeping up on Auckland"; In late 1959, twelve people set out on a voyage halfway round the world, from England to New Zealand. It was not a sailing adventure but a commercial project. The boat was the Aberdeen Anzac, a seventy-foot North Sea trawler, and the plan was to make a good profit by selling her to the Wellington Fishermen's Cooperative. Perhaps unsurprisingly, it didn't quite work out like that. In this book, with the benefit of forty-five years' hindsight, C.A. Latimer tells the story of an ill-prepared and prolonged passage, certainly not to be emulated - but one which proved to be strangely enjoyable for a variety of unexpected reasons.

He worked as a Yacht broker in London.
